Rabbi Kohn:

My below e-mail to you of July 26th was based upon a conversation that I had with my client before I left for vacation last week. Having now spoken to my client and Rabbi Halpern (its Toyen) in more detail, I believe I misunderstood their position and wish to correct the below e-mail. My client will, in fact, proceed before your beis din, as you invited it to do. I apologize for any confusion to the contrary.

Please coordinate the dates for the din Torah directly with Rabbi Halpern, whom I am copying on this e-mail.

Thank you.

Respectfully,

Mike Levine

Rabbi Kohn:

As I indicated to you in my last e-mail, I am out of the office until next Tuesday. I will respond to your e-mails below more substantively at that time, however I want to make it clear that my client does not intend to proceed before your beis din. If and when a hazmana is properly issued, my client will respond appropriately.
